

Roberts, Bradley

From: philip hornbeck <pehornbeck@yahoo.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 16, 2015 2:50 PM
To: Roberts, Bradley
Subject: trying again

Good afternoon,

Sorry about the computer glitch. One thing I wanted to inquire about is whether or not you traveled down here and only related very old news that the semi annual report was online? You mentioned earlier you also visited the Haysville Library and that was to be the site for your proposed repository. I also visited with the library to gauge their interest in additional relevant material. They are in the process of cataloging what they have now and are interested in additional available public information.

The semi annual report as available now is a mess.; Five groups are known to have an interest: the lab running the analysis, KDHE, EPA . oxy and the public. There may be more but that is all I am aware of. The public doesn't need who caught the sample or standard prep and recovery to mention a few. Standards are made certain by the lab and the groups involved I'm sure go over it with a fine tooth comb. It's just a part of the many pages the public must wade through to find actual results. Keeping it simple would be in the best interest of the public while other particulars are important to various parties. Why are the iw's limited to four for publication?

RCRA

536768